BioEnergetic Assessment

This process of assessment also known as BEA, is one of the most exciting tools in integrative healthcare because of its ability to identify specific imbalances in the body. Through applied kinesiology (using the body's neuromuscular anatomy, and computerized biofeedback) BEA can help determine the underlying energetic causes of illness. We are exposed daily to toxins such as bacteria, viruses, parasites, mold, pesticides, heavy metals, food additives, industrial pollutants, and stress. Recent medical research shows that people respond differently to these influences; some seemingly do fine whereas others may become very ill to the same exposure.

BEA helps detect and address the following energetic factors affecting your health:

- ADD/ADHD/Autism/PTSD
- Allergies – environmental and food
- Digestive disorders
- Hormone imbalances
- Immune system challenges – viruses, bacteria, yeast, parasites
- Nutritional deficiencies
- Chemical and heavy metal toxicities
- Stress and emotional imbalances
- Dental factors

Find out if this unique approach is right for you and schedule your initial appointment. Suitable for both children and adults alike.
